Centralized VS Decentralized

Centralized System

- Controlled by one main authority.
- Single point of failure.
- User data stored in one place.
- Faster decisions by one center.
- Less transparent.
- Easier to hack if center is attacked.

Decentralized System

- No single authority — shared control.
- No single point of failure.
- Users own their own data.
- Decisions made by network/community.
- More transparent and open.
- Very secure and hard to hack.
- No Owner No Admin Control

What is a Smart Contract?

A smart contract is a computer program stored on a blockchain that runs automatically when certain conditions are met.

Key Points:

- ⚙️ Automatic Execution — Runs by itself when conditions are true.
- 🔒 No Third Party — No bank, no company in between.
- 🧠 Code-Based Agreement — Rules written in computer code.
- 📄 Transparent — Anyone can see the code on the blockchain.
- 🔒 Secure — Once deployed, it can't be changed or hacked easily.
- 🌐 Used For — Tokens, NFTs, DeFi, games, and all blockchain apps.

Example

A house is tokenized on blockchain, a buyer sends the agreed payment to the smart contract he contract instantly transfers ownership to the buyer.

- ✅ No agents, no delays, no fraud.
